RIGHT TO SPEEDY TRIAL: Please be advised that pursuant to Section 1382 of the California Penal Code, you have a right to a speedy trial, meaning that your trial must begin within forty-five (45) days after your arraignment. If your trial does not begin within that time period, and good cause for the delay is not shown to the court, then the court must order your case dismissed. If you are requesting a trial date beyond the forty-five (45) day limit, you will be giving up your right to a speedy trial. If you do not want to give up this right, do not initial this waiver. Your request for postponement may be denied due to time restraints within the forty-five (45) day period if you do not agree to give up your right to a speedy trial.

I understand my right to a speedy trial as explained above; I wish to give up my right to a speedy trial. I understand that my trial will be timely if held on the date to which the trial is continued (Initials) _____
