

PROTECT YOUR PRIVACY

The party filing a document is responsible for excluding or redacting (removing) personal identifying information such as social security and financial account numbers from documents filed with the court.

When filing a document with the court, use only the last four digits of the social security and financial account numbers

If a court order requires personal identifying information, the party may file a confidential reference list (Judicial Council form MC-120) that matches the information redacted from the original document with a corresponding abbreviation. This list is confidential.
