Riverside County Probation Department administers an informal probation program (Welf. & Inst. Code, § 654), and a deferred entry of judgment program (Welf. & Inst. Code, § 790). Victims of criminal offenses need juvenile court information to enable them to collect damages done to person and property, even when no petition has been filed in the juvenile court. To ensure that needed information is provided to the victims, the probation department requires authorization to release this information.

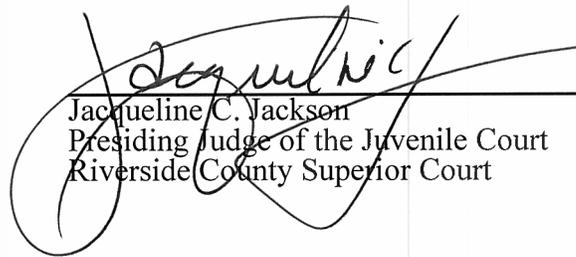

The juvenile court finds good cause to grant the Riverside County Probation Department's request for authorization to release juvenile court information to victims. The juvenile court hereby issues a standing order allowing the probation department to release police

1 reports, the names and addresses of minors, and the names and addresses of the minors' parents
2 or guardians to victims for the purpose of obtaining restitution.
